WOMANLY DIGNITY. n the London Saturday Review.) Nature, which has given weapons of as-sault or means of defense to almost all living creatures, has made man audacious, and has endowed woman with dignity And dignity has the best of it. In fact, womanly dignity may be accepted as one among many explanations of that legendary power which turned the bravest man to stone, and made the night of the strongest like water in their bones. What strongest like water in their bones. What to penetrate the armadillo's coat of mail by a needle, or make a hole in a pachydern by a popgun, as fire a woman to paster by the strongest like where it women to the properties of the strongest like water in their bones. What strongest like water in their bones, which is a very lavorite kind with the women to paster a woman to paster a woman to paster by a popgun, as fire a woman to paster a woma derm by a popgun, as fre a woman to passion or melt her to pity when she has some entrenched herself in the stronghold of her dignity. No argument can shake her, no reasoning convince her; despair dies away in querulousness, and the pleadings of love itself fall dull and blunted from her stately self-possession like so many toy shalts hurled against a polished and implementable surface. Indeed, how can your sage in anger, or abase yourself in entreaty, to a creature who is felly polite, infilly unmoved, not to be goaded into the smallest demonstration which would put her in the wrong and give you a vantagepoint against her said whose all points against her said whose all self-possessions. They are of the separation of the lower conditions of life. Ask these women to do unpleasant they are all your suggestion. They are of the seven to do unpleasant they are in the set women to do unpleasant they are in your suggestion. They are of the seven to do unpleasant they are in your suggestion. They are of the seven to do unpleasant work, and specially that they should be protected from the lower conditions of life. Ask these women to do unpleasant work, and see how their dignity takes arms at once, and how offended and indignant they are in your suggestion. They are of the seven her dependent of the lower conditions of life. Ask these women to do unpleasant work, and see how their dignity takes arms at once, and how offended and indignant they are to be spared what others have to endure. Have they in the real product of the lower conditions of life. Ask these women to do unpleasant work, and specially that they should be specially that they should be protected from the lower conditions of life. Ask these women to do unpleasant work, and specially that they should be protected from the lower conditions of life. Ask these women to do unpleasant work, and specially that they should be protected from the lower conditions of life. Ask these women to do unpleasant work, and ther dignity takes arms at once, and there we work, what others have to endure. Have they not reaty, to a creature who is kelly polite, leftly unmoved, not to be goaded into the smallest demonstration which would put her in the wrong and give you a vantage-point against her, and whose calm eyes look at you with a kind of superior score which, while it maddens you, offers no point of attack? What can you do? Simply nothing. The means of defense which while it maddens with a dignified woman is mistress of the stime to be the store of the stime to be the component of the store of the stime to be so gross and if you greated the store of the stime to be so gross of the stime to be so gross and if you greated the store of the stime to be so gross of the stime to be so gross of the stime to store the store of the stime to be so gross of the stime to store the store of th Nature has given are unassallable, and a dignified woman is mistress of the situation by the very power of negation, it by one other. But there are various kinds of dignity, and it some are more exasperating than others, some are very lovely, and among the greatest charmago woman-hood. There is in particular that soit dignity which belongs to women who are an intensity of the wanting in respect. Unreal, as well as a state to, they are both useless and unsatisfactory. To be sure, they cultivate art, and know the right color of a ribbon, and know to arrange a drawing-room pleuresquely; but as all the charmact that defends them against themselves as well as a galant others. These have a quiet dignity tempered by much sweet-sect and mainer that is the love-fiest of them all, the most subtle as well as em all, the most subtle as well as beautiful. They are like the Lady so only physical strength can control could be rude to them in word or brutal in deed; for there is something about them, very adefinite but very strong withal, which seems to give them, special presents as a summanity possession, it can be carried to excess, and from a virtue to a vice. So long as it is an honest defense work against the rough assaults of superior seems to give them, special presents as y strong withat, which against the rough assaults of superior enter special protection strength, it is both good and fair; but id a loving woman of when it assumes to be more than this, it seems to give them special protection is the minimum insolence; and a laving woman of soft manners, whose mind is pure and who respects herself, is armed with a power which none but the viest can despise. This is the woman who gets a protect obedience from her servants without exacting it, and whose children do not dram of disputing her wishes; who, and women has been session, and women laws a brown of the second of th contempt, and with whom no one takes a liberty. For this one can scarcely give a reason. She would not ramp or rave if the two there is no doubt as to which is she was displeased, she would not scold, as call not strike; but there is a certain quality in her which we may not be the to formularize, yet which would make us sahamed to pass beyond the boundaries of the strictest respect, and boundaries of the strictest respect, and which serving others less consciously

The Boy Who Wanted to Know.

The Jollowing is strictly true. A lady coming to this State recently strictly true. A lady coming to this State recently strictly true and late us salamed to pass beyond the boundaries of the strictest respect, and which restrains others less consciously critical than ourselves as certainly as fear, it is the respect we pay to those who respect themselves; the consideration and bonor which all real purity of nature demands and obtains. This is woman! which we all desire to see in women, whom it would not harden, nor render less than loving.

Then there is the more aggressive, stratting, stage kind of dignity, which we meet in historical romances chiefly, where "avaunt, base caitiff" is a phrase of power, and where an unprotected damsel, in a love of "rich samite bright," with her back hair down, and carrying a small icweler's shop on her person, is able by the magic of her dignity alone to defend derself from the base designs of marauding Barons and the depredations of meaning knaves,—taming the wild beasts among men as Una tamed her lion. This should be also alone what the same thing corself. The mother health of your case." The land the process of the stricts are considered to the voice load and the depredations of meaning knaves,—taming the wild beasts among men as Una tamed her lion. This ing knaves,—taming the wild beasts With a brief season of waiting we gener among men as Una tamed her lion. This ally tound out, as he undoubtedly did. among men as Una tamed her lion. This is a picture exquisitely fascinaling to the young, and firmly believed in. We doubt, however, if any enthusiastic girl would find she possessed the girl if she went into a thieves quarter in London with her purse in her pocket and her dignity as her sole safeguard; and we think she would do better to trust to the hink she would do better to trust to the bolice. This kind of dignity, translated police. This kind of dignity, translated to the home life, is a troublesome sort of thing; but sometimes it 4s internetly of thing; but sometimes it is intensely odd, if one can afford the time to be anused, and a dignified woman of the slage-heroine kind, who "draws herself up to her tull height," as movelish say, and speaks in an octave below her usual speaks in an octave below her usual voce when she is offended, is pretty sure thave henty of occasion for the exercise of her talent.

There is another kind of dignity—the grim kind, repellent and iron-bound—the whereby you feel yourself pushed back point was a saloon.
